LEE'S THREE GOOD WICKETS IN TEST DEBUT

England 17 Behind With Two Wickets To Fall.

ALLEN NOT OUT 25.

Sydney, Yesterday.

Australia have found an excellent foil to O'Reilly in P. K. Lee, the Young South Australian all-rounder. To-day he took the wickets of Hammond Larwood and Paynter at critical moments, and England, after being 245 for 3, were 418 for 8 at the close of play—17 runs in arrears of the Australian total.

With R. E. S. Wyatt (18) and Paynter together after the tea interval supporters of England in the crowd of 30,000 were most optimistic, but for once the Lancashire left hander failed. The pair had added only 25 runs when Paynter was clear bowled by Lee for nine runs.

Alexander and Lee opened the Australian attack after tea, and the 350 went up after 358 minutes' play. Lee, however, met with his third success when he got past Paynter's defence to knock back his off peg 374-7-9.

THREE-DAY BANK HOLIDAY.

"Run" On Baltimore Banks.

Baltimore, Yesterday.

The Governor of Maryland has declared a three-day bank-holiday to all State banks, and financial institutions in order to permit the French press, which considers adoption measures and counteract the heavy withdrawals of $613,000,000.

This sum has been withdrawn chiefly by small depositors from banks in Baltimore during the last few days.

The Government will ask legislation for protection depositors, and security for the banks, which are expected to reopen on March 1.—Reuter.

Japanese aircraft are bombing concentrations of Chinese troops at various parts and are hurrying the alleged retreat of their main forces, of which part are said to be falling back toward Chihfeng, in the centre of the Province, where General Tang Yu-lin is expected to put up resistance.

LEAGUE CONDEMNED AND PRAISED

Paris, Yesterday.

The most important effect which Japan's dramatic gesture at Geneva yesterday is likely to have upon the League is exhaustively discussed in the French press, which considers that Japan will definitely withdraw from the League.

The Left Party papers remain hostile to Japan and declare that the League has done the best to stop the war against Japanese imperialism in Jehol.

The Right Party papers sound the knell of the League which they think incapable of any other action than the forming of Committees of observers and which has gravely

DRAMATIC SPEECHES AT GENEVA

DR. YEN AND MR. MATSUOKA IN DEBATE

DETAILED REPORT OF LEAGUE ASSEMBLY MEETING.

Geneva, February 24.

Before the meeting of the League Assembly there was not a single vacant seat in the galleries. The scene in the corridors was one of animation, possibly unprecedented in the history of the League of Nations. Everybody was discussing the likelihood of a dramatic Japanese gesture.

The Chamber was humming with conversation when M. Paul Hymans, the Belgian Foreign Minister, who is Chairman of the Committee of Nineteen, took his seat. Mr. Matsuoka, the Chief Japanese Delegate, was among the last arrivals. He entered the Chamber at 10.45 o'clock and was followed by his staff, with a confident mien, being seemingly the most imperturbable party in the Chamber.

At 10.50 o'clock the meeting opened. M. Hymans first announced a slight modification of the Report of the Committee of Nineteen, providing for the actual appointment of members of the Negotiating Committee, after which he called on Dr. W. W. Yen, the Chief Chinese Delegate, to speak first.

Dr. Yen's Speech.

Dr. Yen expressed relief and gratification that the Chinese policy was being upheld and vindicated. He congratulated the League for courageously delivering a verdict against one of its most important members for the most wanton aggression in the annals of human civilization. The League has emerged a stronger and revitalized instrument of world peace.

As regards the Report of the Committee of Nineteen, Dr. Yen regretted certain omissions and could not agree with every detail therein, but he said "it would be unbecomingly for us as a party to the dispute to press our views hereon."

Dr. Yen then referred to the Lytton Report and described the powers and functions usurped by Japan in making the South Manchurian Railway an imperium in imperio, derogation of Chinese sovereignty and treaties. He deeply appreciated the sympathy shown to China during the period of transition.

He contrasted the willingness of Japan to settle the dispute with China by arbitration with Japan's refusal to accept the obligation under Article XII of the League Covenant.

Dr. Yen noted with great satisfaction the League's findings regarding the events on September 18, 1931, and also the "emphatic and unmistakable" conclusions regarding the status of Manchukuo which make it incumbent for the Detroit, Yesterday.

A solution has been found to the problems arising from the Michigan banking holiday. It now only needs the approval of the Comptroller of currency at Washington.

The scheme provides for the organization of two new banks to take over the liquid assets of the First National Bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, two of the largest banks in Detroit.

The new organization would immediately make available, 50 per cent. of the deposits in the old institutions.

HONG KONG CHINESE IN SHORT STORY

"A Gentleman Repays A Loan."

LOW CARTOONS ON LEG-THEORY CONTROVERSY.

The exciting adventure of a young Hong Kong Chinese who, owing to the non-arrival of his credit cheque from Hong Kong found himself with only fourpence in London forms an amusing story which will appear in the China Mail to-morrow.

The story, "A Gentleman Repays A Loan," by the well-known author, Keith West, should prove of particular interest to Chinese readers. It forms one of the series of short stories which appear daily in the China Mail.

The leg-theory controversy has formed one of the most sensational cricket disturbances in the history of the game. The aspects of the dispute from the cricketing and technical standpoint have been fully discussed but the topic will be presented in humorous fashion in to-morrow's China Mail, when Low cartoons will be published.

Two brilliant sketches by the world's most famous cartoonist, accompanied by a humorous article by Low's colleague, Terri, will be published to-morrow through the courtesy of the London Evening Standard.

An article on Chinese educational systems will be another outstanding feature of to-morrow's China Mail, while the latest books are reviewed in the Literary page.

In the China Mail's sports pages full statistics for the annual race meeting will be presented in addition to comments on local sport over the week-end.

A full description, accompanied by ringside photographs, of the British heavy-weight championship fight between Pettifer and Peterson will be the sports pages.

Numerous articles and features covering a wide variety of topics appear daily in the China Mail, Hong Kong's oldest and brightest newspaper.

A threat that "Ruthless Measures" will be used if necessary against States opposing the policy of the Central Government, was made by the Minister of the Interior, Doctor Frick, in a speech at Hamburg.

He was obviously replying to the outburst of Herr Schaeffer, the Chairman of the Bavarian "Peoples' Party," who in a speech at Wurzburg declared that if a Commissioner for Bavaria was appointed he would be arrested the moment he crossed the frontier.

Herr Schaeffer added that if the Constitution and Justice were no longer respected Berlin, then Bavarians were free to choose for the State they wanted.

Bavaria, he said, had an ancient civilisation when wild pigs were running in.

REVIVING TOURIST INDUSTRY

Abolition Of Passport
Visa Suggested.

Nice.
The abolition of passport visas, identity cards and customs barriers were among the measures advocated to revive the tourist industry made at the European Tourist Conference which opened at the Casino Mediterranee lately. Another suggestion was that journalists writing articles detrimental to tourist resorts be tried before a criminal court and fined. This was made by Monsieur Sautaggi who, in a fiery speech, advanced the scheme of a central office that would make strong representations to the government of such countries whose papers published such articles. A committee was formed to study the issue. He had raised.—Reuter.

Praise For British Military

U.S. Chief Of Staff's
Eulogies.

"PROGRESSIVE GROUP."

Washington.
"The English Army is a very progressive group in respect of mechanised forces," said General McArthur, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army. "It has established a very wise and definite programme putting about five million dollars a year into such equipment, and despite the serious financial condition of that Nation it is continuing to do so—a very wise plan—so that England probably has the most complete mechanised force of any Army. No man can tell what is going to happen in war, and no man can read the future. But England is progressing along certain lines."

General McArthur complained that the U. S. Army was lacking in mechanisation and that the "five year plan" originally adopted for development in this direction had been suspended for the past two years.

"At no time in history" he declared, "has the United States had greater need than now for the security of an adequate national defence."

The General estimated that Great Britain ranked sixteenth among the nations in trained manpower available with a short period after mobilization. He placed the British Empire as a whole eleventh, with 1,163,000 active soldiers and trained reserves. The U. S. A. was ranked seventeenth, next to Great Britain, with 439,189 men. Soviet Russia was placed first with 18,873,000 trained men; France second with 6,975,000; Italy third with 6,498,000; Spain fourth with 2,324,000 and Japan fifth with 2,177,000.

In Air power the U. S. A. stands "far and away first so far as Naval air strength is concerned," but third when Army and Navy air forces are combined, according to Mr. Davison assistant secretary of war for Aviation. Last year the U. S. A. stood fourth, he said. It is proposed that by July 1934 the U. S. A. shall have a combined Army and Navy air strength of approximately 2,600 planes.

"So far as planes are concerned," added Mr. Davison, "in performance and efficiency we lead the world at present."—Reuter.

BUSY LIFE OF MRS. F. D. ROOSEVELT

"Productive Work For Everyone."

SPEECHES WRITTEN IN A TAXI.

New York.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt never uses the lift in her town house she can make better time on the stairs.

She usually answers the telephone herself instead of having messages relayed. She never takes a train without a load of manuscripts or books. Notes for many of her speeches are written in a taxi en route to the gathering. She may even take the underground to get there faster.

And there, she said recently, are some of the reasons why she can be, all at once, a school teacher, furniture manufacturer, magazine editor, charity worker, prolific public speaker, writer and, of course, first lady-elect of the United States.

"I believe that everyone who can, ought to do some kind of productive work," she says. "Yes, I get letters telling me that people who need them should have my jobs. They would be right if I were doing something which some one else could do."

"As for the Todhunter School (where she teaches six hours a week in addition to conferences with parents) I invested in it and it gives others work. The staff has doubled since we took it over. Only one personal secretary will go with Mrs. Roosevelt to the White House—Miss Malvina Thompson, who has been with her for 10 years.

"Perhaps one of the secrets of Mrs. Roosevelt's activities," she observed, "is that she is so happy—she wastes no time being unhappy. She moves quickly by temperament and by habit. She eats simple meals. She doesn't touch controversial subjects in writing and speaking politically."

"She delegates most of her shopping to others, and when she goes to get her own clothes it's a business matter. She may buy a season's wardrobe in one afternoon."—Reuter.

Making Pastry Light

TO ensure the best results when making pastry everything should be kept as cool as possible, and it should be handled quickly and lightly. It will be found that a glass milk bottle is preferable to a rolling pin when rolling out the pastry as it is both light and cool. It may be kept cool by filling it about one-third full of cold water to which has been added a small lump of ice. A few drops of vinegar added to the mixture before rolling will help it to turn out light.

WORLD'S WOMEN

Americans Set Record In Chic.

SPRING STYLES

AMERICAN women are the smartest in the world, in the opinion of one of the foremost French fashion designers.

"The American woman's figure is her first fashion asset and her intelligence and imagination have enabled her to set a record in chic," says Lucien Lelong, who has recently returned from a sojourn in the United States.

"The way the American woman has retained her smartness at a time when she can't spend much money has impressed me anew."

"Even the shopgirl is chic and well groomed and wears her clothes with verve. How long Americans maintain that record, however, is up to them. They mustn't relax."

Spring styles for 1933 will take on entirely new lines with "subtlety" for their watchword, the designer declared. The rule of "simple sophistication" in vogue for the past two seasons will change to one complicated in cut, and attention to accessories and details will leap into prominence.

New fabrics will be one of the most important notes in the mode, with the old all-wool all-silk materials replaced by new mixtures of silk and wool, silk and linen and artificial silk and cotton. Prints promise to be important.

Colours will take on new tones, neutral shades giving way to bright hues.

Spring Suits And Accessories

Londons Decree For New Season

SIMPLE TAILORING

DAY fashions now show a return to simple tailoring such as in well suited to elaborately blistered and cloque textures. Apart from plain and twilled suitings, coats and jackets will become looser and straighter, swinging from the shoulder to three-quarter or hip length, giving a new box effect, and leaving the front open. They will be worn over dresses or skirts of slim outline, but full in the middle of the back or front. The interest of these coats lies in the tucked shoulder line, or in the short cape of cloth or fur.

Three-quarter length coats may also be cut straight and slim, often with a fur border at the hem; the skirt is straight and calls for a blouse of tunic length.

Blouses worn with tailor-made suits are likely to be of strong colours such as yellow, orange, or bright green when the suits are of neutral shades, and chalky pastel colours when navy blue is worn. These contrasts will be chiefly in the tailored blouses; for those who prefer greater elaboration there are blouses of fine silks, lawns, muslins, and taffetas ruffled or lace-trimmed.

Large bows of taffetas and organ-die make a spring-like finish to collarless coats. Colour will be conspicuous in organdie, pique, and linen neckwear; and there will be capelets with stand-up collars, plastrons, and yokes and cuffs of these materials.

Scarves continue to be used on dresses and coats. Many are buttoned on or fixed with a big clip and may be adjusted in different ways. Rings of galalite and metal are also used as scarf attachments and repeated in the belt fastening. Leather belts are of all widths; they have wide flat buckles of metal or wood, and often set the colour note on a dress of neutral tone.

Wide swathes of softly crushed materials with long ends tied in a loose bow are used on silk afternoon dresses, and look well in black circassian on pastel tones or in chalky shades of pink and blue on dull black. Soft swathes with short ends knotted in bright wools are used on sports dresses, or belts of black and white plaid braid twisted several times round the waist and finished with fringed ends.

A leather belt may have the wearer's initials stamped in gold on a flat piece of the leather in place of a buckle. Copper clips, buttons, and buckles are newer than brass or steel and may trim all shades of brown and navy blue.

FACECLOTH AND FLANNEL

AN original dinner dress in black facecloth made by a British designer has no decoration beyond its touch of white finishing the décolletage and open-work stitching outlining the close-fitting seams.

Its "twin" has just gone to New York, but in old Italian parchment brocade with lacquer-green stitching.

Welsh flannel, with its old-world atmosphere, is a favourite choice for the colder part of the Mediterranean cruise. Shall we also complete the neatly belted frock by the tall black witch-like beaver hat?

We are certainly getting more and more all-British in our taste, and now perhaps feel almost ashamed at neglecting the numerous lovely things that have lain so long at our elbow.

Walls And Ceilings

MODERN furnishing schemes include walls covered with patterned papers instead of plain colours. Some of the new wall-papers, for instance, are printed with little figures in bright costumes, and there are dozens of sprawling patterns showing large and small gold leaves.

With an ivory ceiling, walls patterned with a design of dim green, cream and gold in light and refreshing, while streaks of gold between a pattern brightens a dull room tremendously.

But there are some people who now prefer to have their walls discoloured and the ceilings papered with one of these new, patterned designs.

SLIPPER HINT

SOFT-SOLED slippers, particularly useful for the elderly and for invalids to wear when lying down, are to be bought or may be hand-knitted. Cast on stitches to six or seven inches, according to the size of the foot (six inches if a size four shoe is worn), and knit nine inches in two knit, two purl. Cast off. Double the resulting strip and sew it up, turning it in a little at the opening. It will then be a bar four and a half inches deep. Crochet an edge round the opening and sew a bow or wool pom-pom at the top of one seam to indicate the front.

FRUIT PIES

IF when you are making fruit pies you put the sugar between two layers of the fruit instead of at the bottom of the dish, the juice will not boil over. Putting the sugar on top of the fruit is apt to make the pastry heavy.

Athletic Held By Kowloon

Artillery Retain Lead In Premier Division

THE KOWLOON JUNIORS caused the only surprise in yesterday's football programme, when, after being a goal in arrears at half time, they held the Athletic, present leaders, to a draw on the Kowloon ground.

The Royal Artillery maintained their position at the head of the premier division when they decisively beat the Club by four clear goals, while Kowloon also secured a comfortable win when playing the Recreio at King's Park, though the latter team again showed improved form.

The most notable success in the Junior division was that of Talkoo who secured their second point of the season at the expense of the Recreio. At the other end of the table the Borderers consolidated their position with an 8-nil victory over Eastern.

The game between St. Joseph's and South China in the third Division was abandoned 25 minutes after the start owing to the spectators encroaching on the field of play.

FIRST DIVISION.

League Leaders Beat Club.

GOUGH AND MOORE SCORE TWICE FOR GUNNERS.

The Artillery, league leaders, experienced little difficulty in beating the Club by four clear goals at the Valley yesterday.

The football throughout never reached a high standard, and after the Gunners had established a lead of three goals the play was mostly confined to midfield with the Club players striving hard against a team who were taking matters easily. Except for the periods in which the goals were scored there were no incidents to stir the supporters of either side.

The Club, who were without Fowler and Williams, introduced a new player, Wirth, at inside-right. This player will, no doubt, prove a useful acquisition for he initiated some nice movements and was the only player to test Combe.

The Gunners were well served in defence, Allen outshining his partner, Rogers, who is a poor substitute for Taylor. Collier and Pardoe were the best halves, while at times the five forwards combined brilliantly. Gough led the line well with Moore a little better than Bryant. Seal's speed served him in good stead and he had much more work to do than Wood.

After ten minutes desultory play the Artillery took the lead when Gough broke through and passed to Moore, who coolly placed the ball past the helpless Rodger. The best movement of the game came from the Club forwards and culminated in G. Duncan hitting the side netting. A fine burst of speed by Seal enabled him to beat Skinner, and Gough had no difficulty in passing the second goal from his pass. A misunderstanding between Skinner, Martin and Rodger gave Gough the chance to score the third point just before the interval.

In the second half the Artillery slackened noticeably, but they added to their tally when Moore scored a good goal.

P.O. Dibb lined out the following teams:—
Club:—Rodger, Martin, Hyatt, Skinner, S. Strange, A. Duncan, G. Duncan, Watson, E. Strange, Wirth and Sloan.
Artillery:—Combe, Rogers, Allen, Collier, Pardoe, Harris, Wood, Bryant, Gough, Moore and Seal.

Nelems On The Mark Against Recreio.

KOWLOON SECURE POINTS.

Kowloon took two well-earned points from the Recreio at King's Park yesterday, scoring 5 goals to the Recreio's 2.

The Recreio started with a strong wind in their favour and had the ball in the Kowloon area, but McKelvie cleared well and Bickford took it up the wing to send in a shot which was handled by one of the Recreio players. McKelvie, who took the resulting penalty, made no mistake to give Kowloon the lead. The Recreio soon equalised, however, when Nicholls mis-kicked a centre sent in by Figueiredo, Ribeiro tapping the ball neatly into the back of the net. Within a minute, however, Kowloon were again in the lead, Nelems running through on his own to score with ease.

After the interval McKelvie sent Kowloon further ahead when he scored with a lovely shot from thirty yards range, and almost immediately after, Webb secured Kowloon's fourth goal. Gomes reduced the lead after some nice play by the Recreio forwards, but Nelems added another for Kowloon, thus giving them a comfortable lead which they retained to the end.

SECOND DIVISION.

Roden Give Navy Points Over Lincolns.

The Navy beat the Lincolns in a very keen and open game, and the solitary goal scored was a poor reflection of the run of the play.

Play was mainly in the Lincoln goalmouth, and on one occasion of heavy pressure Roden was forced to concede a corner. Taylor placed the kick well, but the ball was headed clear, only for Martin, the Navy right half, to rush up and send in a first-timer that found the net.

Navy:—Woodman, Clayton, Powell, Martin, Turner, Ashman, Taylor, Brooks, Rawson, Cleary and Parsons.
Lincolns:—Deacon, Roden, Colclough, Maughan, Worrall, Wilby, Clayton, Barnes, P. McGuinness, S. McGuinness and Brennan.

Borderers Score Eight Against Eastern.

Eastern gave a very poor display against the Borderers at Sookunpo, being beaten by eight clear goals.

The Borderers opened the scoring through Hamblin in the first few minutes. The same player added a second after good play by Hazelwood, who was the outstanding player on the field.

Eastern cracked up completely in the second half and the Borderers indulged in shooting practice adding further goals through Morris (3), Wallace (2) and Nelson.

Borderers:—Williams, Rees, Underwood, Court, Bebbington, Wallace, Seanie, Nelson, Hamblin, Morris and Hazelwood.

Eastern:—Cheung You-hang; Lai Ting-choi, Ho Lai-yung; Li Yam, Ho Yai-wai, Tai Lo; So Po-wai, Lam Sing-ting, Lam Ho-hang, Choi Hau-kai and Luk Fook-wa.

PROTESTS IN CORINTHIAN YACHT RACE

La Linda, Isobel and Full Involved.

SECOND MAINSAIL FOR ROLLA USELESS.

The first Corinthian race of the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club, completed for yesterday, was featured by a double protest.

In the "G" class, Miss Patchett sailing Tynette with Messrs. Grievie and Chambers as crew, beat Joan (Mr. F. Cope) by a handsome margin. Sirius (Mr. Spurlender) did not finish. Zephyr, sailed by her new owners Major Grellier and Major Wren, was out and performed well in the strong wind but she did not sail in the race.

There were only two starters in the "H" class as Rolla (Mr. Stock) had the mainsail torn when sailing round to the Club. A second mainsail was quickly bent, but it proved too weak for the strong wind and tore again. Diana (Messrs. C. F. Hyde and C. J. Law) and Dorothea (Messrs. R. P. Edwards, S. P. Wade and H. Stillard) fought the race out between them. Diana, the Championship winner, came in first, but Dorothea with her less experienced crew was only four minutes behind on corrected time.

In the "A" class race, just before or at the start, La Linda (Mr. H. Dwyer) flew a protest flag against Isobel (Dr. Davis) for touching when Isobel was the windward boat. Later on, La Linda was in turn protested against by Gull (Mr. Neess) for forcing Gull on the starboard tack to go about in order to avoid a collision with La Linda, on the port tack.

These protests will be decided by the Sailing Committee later, which will no doubt entail some disqualifications and alterations in the order of finishing.

In the "A" & "Y" class Allas, steered by Major, Lochner, with Capt. Bolt as crew, ran away from the two Heyward Hayes boats. Allas took advantage of the smooth water close along the Hong Kong shore, and worked out a good lead on the windward leg to Lyemun Beacon. Why Wonder? rounded next some distance ahead of Bluejacket, but with her short-handed crew she did not set a Spinnaker on the long run to Kowloon Rock. Bluejacket with spinnaker drawing well came up then, but could not pass Why Wonder? The two boats had a ding dong race home, the former just keeping second place by 6 seconds, at the finish.

Strong Volunteers Fifteen Defeat Naval Side at Sookunpo

The Volunteers Rugby fifteen defeated a weakened Navy team by two goals (10 points) to nil in a game featured by hard running and excellent kicking at Sookunpo yesterday.

The Navy, weakened by the absence of many of their ships from port, played a fine game, but they were weak behind the scrum, the passing and handling not being up to the usual standard.

Dr. J. A. H. Selby, who led the Volunteers, was responsible for many fine openings from one of which A. F. Jenkins scored a spectacular try which L. G. Robertson converted.

E. R. A. Daggott, who played his usual bustling game, was outstanding for his defensive play. Time and again he saved his side with good kicks into touch.

J. J. Ferguson's handling on the Volunteers' right wing was poor, and his running was not so dexterous as usual. He, however, scored the first try as the result of a good run down the wing, Robertson converting the effort.

WOODLAND STAG BEATEN

MR. NEEDA RECORDS THE "HAT TRICK"

AMAZING FINISHING ABILITIES

CLOSE FINISHES FEATURE DAY OF SMALL DIVIDENDS.

Three records were shattered during the last day of the Annual Race Meeting at the Valley yesterday, the new record holders being Rosy Morn (Mr. T. L. Wong), King's Justice (Mr. V. V. Needa) and Night Star (Mr. D. S. Li).

In a day of surprisingly good racing, considering the poor weather conditions, the defeat of Woodland Stag by Night Star was perhaps the most sensational, but even this did not produce a substantial dividend.

Mr. V. V. Needa, the Shanghai jockey, again demonstrated his finishing abilities when he recorded the "hat trick" by wins on King's Justice, Street Singer and Warrington. During the five days' racing he has secured 9 wins, 9 seconds and 6 thirds as against Mr. "Leo" Frost's 10 wins, 5 seconds and 5 thirds.

Mr. "Johnny" Heard had the satisfaction of being responsible for the highest dividend of the day, Alexandra Hall giving him his only win of the afternoon to pay punters $24.60.

The Flemington Plate.

Babs (Mr. Soares) led the field on the rails at the Rock with Ngtuk (Mr. Sewell) in close attendance, but both ponies failed to last the distance, and Rosy Morn came through to win in a convincing manner in record time, clipping two-fifths of a second off City of Melbourne's record.

The "also-rans" finished up as follows: Stickybeak (Mr. Frost), Australian Chief (Mr. Butler), Ngtuk (Mr. Sewell), Northern Star (Mr. Li) and Babs (Mr. Soares).

The Happy Valley Spring Handicap.

Mr. G. U. da Rosa set the pace on King's Bounty and held a lead of two lengths coming into the straight. He held it until the stands were reached, and it was then that Mr. Needa's now well-known "finish" was witnessed. King's Justice crept slowly up and beat his stable rival by a short head. It was a grand finish to a race in which jockeyship told its tale. King's Justice broke the sixth record of the meeting, clipping 1 1/5 secs. off Doctor's Mandate's record.

No less thrilling was the struggle for third place. Daylight Eve (Mr. Ip Kui-ying), The Tiger (Mr. Frost) and Dee (Mr. Clark) rode neck and neck past the stands, Mr. Ip just bringing his mount past to pay $9.60 for a place. It was a very close thing—less than a short head. Dee was fourth and The Tiger fifth with Valorous (Mr. Heard) and Gold Key (Mr. Li) well out of the running.

The Griffins Spring Handicap.

The Cavalier (Mr. Liang) was left at the start and was never in a position to regain his lost distance. Tenorio (Mr. Frost) and Solus Star (Mr. Proulx) set the pace, but both ponies lost ground at the Rock where Stourbridge (Mr. G. U. da Rosa) was seen to close with the leaders.

In the straight, however, Tenorio came back well and just managed third place after a thrilling race up where, and Spotted Butterly (Mr. Pam), which had been just behind the leaders all the way.

Spring Subscription Griffins' Champions.

Mr. Needa won the subs. classic as the result of brilliant riding at the finish. Warrington, the favourite, was almost six lengths behind The Goat (Mr. Clark) at the Rock, the latter pony tearing up the course in the first half mile. Coming into the straight it looked like Golden Dragon's race with Mr. Heard up, though Black Rock (Mr. Wong) looked a strong challenger.

Mr. Needa, however, caught the leaders and won by two lengths, and both Golden Dragon and Jingle beat Black Rock out of a place position.

Mr. Needa's triumph was his third in succession, and his "hat trick" could only be attributed to his amazing finishing abilities.

The Griffins Spring Handicap "B" Class.

Mr. Frost had to wait six races before he registered his first win of the afternoon. It was a struggle between two favourites and the champion jockey just beat Mr. Wong on the post. It was yet another thrilling finish in an interesting day's racing.

RAPIER FORECASTS RESULT OF AUSTRALIAN CHAMPIONS.

Four Outright Winners.

Rapier forecasted five winners in yesterday's China Mail. In two of the eight races his forecasted winner did not run. In the Australian Champions Rapier forecasted the exact result with Woodland Stag and Polar Star in the place positions. His other winners were Burgomaster, King's Justice, and Warrington.

Mr. Ip Kui-ying, who can also ride a good finish pushed Double Face as much as was possible and got to within a length of the leaders in a spirited effort. King's Company was the only other dangerous-looking pony in a poor field.

The Australian Champions.

This was undoubtedly the best race of the afternoon, and Night Star's victory over the old time favourite, Woodland Stag, has commenced a new chapter in the history of Australian ponies in the Colony.

Night Star (Mr. Li) took the lead from the start, Mr. Li having learned the lesson of waiting too long on Polar Star in the Melbourne Cup, and he never relinquished it, although Woodland Stag would probably have won had he not had to cut across to avoid Polar Star's hoofs on the rails. He must have lost quite fifteen yards as the result, and he was beaten by only half a length.

Mr. Frost attempted to follow Night Star in the first quarter mile, but, finding the pace too hot for him, he relinquished his position to Polar Star (Mr. Butler). The leaders fought it out until coming into the straight where they both looked certain to beat the Stag pony, but then it was that Mr. Frost brought his mount to the fore. All three ponies tore down the straight neck and neck, fully ten yards separating the one from the other in line, and it looked as if the favourite would just do it. Mr. Li, however, received a ready response to his last urge, and Night Star won a brilliantly judged race in record time, clipping two-fifths of a second off the late Season Ticket's record.

The Happy Valley Spring Handicap "B" Class.

Helter Skelter (Mr. Frost) set a very fast pace in the field of thirteen starters, but he was a spent force by the time the Rock was reached. It was then left to Mr. "Johnny" Heard to record his first win of the day on Alexander Hall, a pony that seems to improve in every race. He beat Mon Tullman by 1 1/2 lengths, in spite of Mr. Needa's magnificent finish. Wakefield (Mr. Ip Kui-ying) was third and Powerful King (Mr. T. L. Wong) fourth.

Larwood 98 In Test

The weather was glorious and the wicket good when Hammond (72) and Larwood (6) resumed the English innings this morning at 159 for 2 before 17,000 spectators.

O'Reilly and Alexander opened the Australian attack, but the English batsmen proved too steady for an early dismissal. Larwood got Ironmonger away to the rails through the covers to raise the second century after 207 minutes' batting.

The partnership realised 50 runs in 54 minutes, Larwood playing forcing cricket all the time.

The Nottingham fast bowler hit Alexander for two successive boundaries and later for a four to the on to complete his 50 in 77 minutes. Included in his half century were six boundaries.

Hammond cut Ironmonger for a single to reach his century, after 205 minutes, but soon after he lost his wicket in attempting to sweep a ball from Lee to leg. He completely missed it and the ball hit him on the pads for an l.b.w. decision.

Hammond was very subdued today in comparison with his brilliant display yesterday. He hit twelve boundaries in his innings of 101, scored in 207 minutes.

At lunch Larwood was 62 and Leyland 5 with the score at 253 for 3.

LARWOOD CHEERED

Before a crowd of 30,000 spectators Lee and O'Reilly resumed the Australian attack after lunch. Larwood again showed his aggressiveness and hit two boundaries off Alexander, his partnership with Leyland realising 50 in 45 minutes. Larwood later hit Lee for a 6 and a 4 off consecutive balls.

The huge crowd, which had previously barracked him unmercifully, cheered him to the echo for his enterprising display.

When only two short of his first Test century, Larwood was caught by Ironmonger at mid-on off Lee. He was at the crease for 138 minutes and gave a polished display, featuring his batting with powerful drives to the on. His best hits included a six, a five, and 9 boundaries. He and Leyland added 65 runs in as many minutes.

The 300 was hoisted after 291 minutes play. Leyland, who had been batting cautiously, was run out for a useful 44. He batted for 77 minutes and hit six boundaries (330-5

CRAIGENGOWER checked the Kowloon Cricket Club's triumphant progress in the premier cricket league when they forced their hosts to a drawn game yesterday. The Indian R.C., the champions, beat the Army, and as a result one point ahead of their Kowloon rivals. The Club gained their fifth win when they decisively shattered the University's 100 per cent. record.

It was a day of heavy scoring and the Second League teams added their full quota. Kowloon were forced to a draw at the Valley by Craigenower who declared with only 4 wickets down. The Club easily accounted for the Service Corps, and the Civil Service surprised the University.

Budget Balancing Difficulties

Britain's Meat Purchases Cause Anxiety

(By SIR MONTAGUE BARLOW)

ARGENTINA — El Dorado — silver — gold. A country with such titles sounds alluring, and yet the rich and attractive lands of South America seem curiously to lie outside the beat of the ordinary traveller.

I had a personal reason for the journey, for it was Roger Barlow who, with Hernando Calderon, acted as treasurer to Sebastian Cabot when he made the first famous voyage of discovery up the Plate River in 1527.

My family are proud to claim this definite and early link with a "Conquistador" and with the Plate, even if the link has lain in cold storage for 405 years.

Express Shipping Service.

Undoubtedly Englishmen find the length of the sea voyage one great obstacle to visiting America: three weeks each way is a heavy slice, even out of a generous holiday. Now that most of the English lines are operating in combination, could not the occasional luxury of an English express service, sailing direct between Southampton and Buenos Aires, be allowed us?

I spent a most enjoyable month or two in Argentina. Statistics are for mathematicians or madmen, but as a basis it is worth realising that Argentina covers rather more than a million square miles, being four times as big as France and Germany put together. It stretches over 2,000 miles from tropical Brazil in the north to icy Terra del Fuego in the south, and nearly 1,000 miles across from the Atlantic seaboard on the east to the Andes in the west. The population is about 12,000,000 of which number over 2,000,000 occupy Buenos Aires.

The present Government, the result of the upheaval in 1930, is broad based, representative of varied parties, and though subject to criticism — what Government is not? — in the general view is carrying on well in difficult circumstances. It was interesting to hear the view expressed by officers in the fighting forces that no more revolutions were wanted.

There were, however, even during my visit, murmurings of discontent among the "Radicales" and the Socialists, and an attempt at revolution has broken out in the last few days; but the ease with which the Government has been able to arrest it indicates the strength of its position. Inherited Gifts of Leadership. Aristotle long ago defined the test of an effective aristocracy as "inherited wealth and character," and Argentina is fortunate in being able to draw on a governing class of experience and distinction. The country's long-drawn-out struggle for freedom early in the 19th century was crowned with success, largely, as Argentina remembers, through Canning's master stroke of recognition in 1826.

Throughout the long struggle, and later in the fierce constitutional fights of the mid-century, the country had no lack of courageous and forceful leaders, largely the descendants of the Spanish aristocracy — San Martin and Arenales, Mitre and Roca, names venerated to-day throughout the land.

Their descendants, with wealth advanced in the last half-century in the upward march of the country, are still taking a splendid share in the labours of national administration. The late President Uriburu was son-in-law of the heroic Arenales. Dr. Julio Roca, now Vice-President, son of the famous President, Gen. Julio Roca, is shortly to visit us at the head of a special mission; his cordial regard for England is well-known, and his sister is the wife of Señor Uriburu, for many years the popular representative of Argentina in this country.

The country is going through a bad time; everyone assured me of that. There is difficulty in balancing the Budget; the exchange has to be kept up by refusing to part with gold; and prosperous families have to throw up their chateaux in France or their holidays in England and return to Argentina.

The control of the exchange I found a hotly contested issue. The able and clear-sighted Finance Minister, Dr. Alberto Huvo, has, with the support of the Government, so far successfully resisted all efforts to relax control; he is determined to maintain the credit of the country unimpaired. It is difficult not to sympathise with this determination, though in fact the restrictions undoubtedly press hardly on some investors who cannot get any money at all out of the country.

I heard the Finance Minister accused of sacrificing the interests of agriculture to the foreigner. His answer would be that agriculture and the country generally would be the first to suffer if Argentina defaulted on the servico of her foreign loans. The interest on external loans is roughly 50,000,000 in paper pesos at par, and sinking funds are an additional 40,000,000, but with exchange at about its present figure, an additional 26,000,000 must be allowed for interest and 14,000,000 for sinking funds.

Position of British Investments. I gathered that the Minister of Finance was determined to maintain the punctual service of both interest and sinking fund on the national debt so long as it is physically possible to do so.

From recent cables it appears that the Government have been forced at last to consider suspending the sinking funds on foreign loans. The method of such suspension will require careful adjustment so as not to press hardly on any class of foreign investments. As proposed it looks as if English investments nearing final payments might suffer heavily, and this should be adjusted.

Assuming the foreign exchange market had to be controlled, it is certain that the control could not have been exercised with greater honesty, efficiency and tact.

I was in the country both before and after the Ottawa decisions were made public. Before publication the current impression seemed to be that England must always take Argentine beef and mutton; our working classes demanded it and would have it. After Ottawa the cry was that England's very tentative experiments in restriction for their meat import would, it was feared, probably spell ruin for Argentina.

On landing I had tried to persuade Argentine friends to take Ottawa seriously. England may be deliberate in her decisions, but when she does act she acts effectively, and Ottawa and the swing over to Protection was the culmination of a thirty years' struggle, and would mark a decisive change of national policy.

It was a thousand pities, in their own interest, that Argentine Governments had paid so little practical attention to the Report of the D'Abernon Commission of 1929, and had not adopted the reasonable proposals for trade co-operation put forward at the time.

What Other Countries Have Done. After Ottawa, as against undue pessimism, it was not difficult to rub in that provisional restriction of meat purchases by England to the amount sold to us last year could hardly be said to spell ruin for Argentina this year, any more than last year. It was, in any case, a mild gesture compared with the complete embargo on the sale of imported Argentine meat imposed in the last few years by the United States, not to mention somewhat similar stolid refusals by Germany and France to buy Argentine products.

The further reduction of 20 per cent. in our meat imports, voluntarily agreed to after I had left the country by all concerned, is, I gather, being accepted for what it is, namely, a temporary expedient to meet the sudden peril.

BRIDGE NOTES

THE USES OF INFERENCE

(By John Darrack.)

Contract Bridge, altho in bidding and in play, is an exercise in pure logic. The position of a given card may be ascertained by direct inference—from a call on a lead—or by deduction. A direct inference is, of course, not so mathematically certain as a logical deduction, and either may be stultified by psychic bidding or by false carding.

A very ingenious example under the former head was given by the late Mr. Jack Dalton.

North.

Spades: A Q X X
Hearts: X X X
Diamonds: A X X X
Clubs: X X

South.

Spades: K J X X
Hearts: X
Diamonds: None
Clubs: A K Q J 10 X X X

I quote the hands from memory.

East and West were vulnerable.

South dealt and bid—One Heart. (1)

A bid of Four Clubs would have been useless. One or other of the opponents was probably void of the suit and a strong bid in Hearts might very probably prevent South from showing his clubs on the second round. It is to be observed that he could not double even a Grand Slam call in Hearts or Diamonds. So South cut the knot by calling Hearts himself. North called One Spade and South went Six Clubs and made Seven.

This, however, is by the way. I merely cite the example to show how an immediate inference can be completely stultified by an irregular bid.

The stronger your own hand is—i.e. the more key cards of which you know the position—the stronger your inferences become until at last they rank as mathematical deductions.

I remember how I once had the extreme pleasure of picking up the following hand.

Spades: A K X X
Hearts: A K Q
Diamonds: K J X X
Clubs: Q K

My partner (the dealer) called, to my increasing pleasure, One No Trump. Here my own hand was so very strong that I could know at once exactly what his cards were. He obviously had the Ace, King of Clubs and the Ace of Diamonds. Of course it was not necessary for him to hold anything more, but we were not vulnerable and I took the plunge and called Seven No Trumps. It was admittedly a daring call, but fortune favoured us and my partner made the Contract.

Here is an example from play which illustrates immediate inference in the play of cards.

North.

Spades: K Q 9 8
Hearts: K X X
Diamonds: K Q X
Clubs: A X X

West.

Spades: X X X
Hearts: Q 10
Diamonds: J 10 X X X
Clubs: X X X

South.

Spades: J 10 X X
Hearts: J X
Diamonds: X X X
Clubs: Q X X X X

East.

Spades: A X
Hearts: A 9 X X X X
Diamonds: A X X
Clubs: K J

Both vulnerable. South dealt and passed. West No Bid. North One No Trump. East Two Hearts.

Finish.

Here East could infer a lot. North opening the bidding at third must have three to three and a half honour tricks. Those tricks might include K Q J of Spades, Hearts, and Diamonds, and the major tenace in clubs.

As soon as dummy went down it became clear that North could have at the outside one honour trick (K Q) in Diamonds and half an honour trick (K) in Hearts. To make up his quota, therefore, he must hold K Q J of Spades or A Q of Clubs or K Q of Spades and A of Clubs.

Now South led a small Spade to which North played the Queen. Therefore North did not hold the Jack of Spades. He, therefore, must hold the Ace of Clubs.

So much for the position of key cards. The Jack of Hearts alone is outstanding. East has somehow to make five tricks in Hearts, his two outside aces and the King of Clubs. In this particular instance East was one down. It was his own fault.

To the sixth trick the play went as follows:—

South	West	North	East
4 S	3 S	Q S	A S
3 H	Q H	K H	2 H
5 S	6 S	K S	2 S
10 S	7 S	9 S	4 H
J H	10 H	7 H	A H
2 D	3 C	8 H	9 H

East then led the Ace of Diamonds followed by a small one. North was quick to seize the heaven-sent opportunity. He made the Queen of Diamonds and led out the King, drawing East's last Diamond. He knew now that East held two Hearts and two Clubs. By leading the eight of Spades he put East one down.

East's correct course was obvious. At trick seven he should have led a small Diamond. If North now returns his Spade, East triumphs and leads out the Ace and remaining Diamond, and North is left with the lead and nothing but Clubs in his hand. East was perfectly safe if he had deduced that North must hold K Q of Diamonds and Ace of Clubs. One thing should have been impressed on his mind right through the game—that, come what might, he must not be reduced to leading Clubs from his own hand. And, as I have shown, it was easy enough to avoid having to do so.

As a matter of fact, if I had played the hand, I would have attempted to lead up to my King of Clubs earlier.

The position is that if North at the outset holds King, Jack and another Heart, East, West must be down in any case. Accordingly, at trick three, knowing perfectly well that North has the King of Hearts, I would have finessed the ten in Dummy. If North had played the Jack to it, when next I had the lead I would have played out the Ace of Hearts in the hope that the King would fall, and would then have played the rest of the hand as I have shown.

If, on the other hand, dummy's ten of Hearts had drawn the King, as it would if fact have done, at my next lead I would have made the Queen of Hearts in Dummy and led a Club to my King. I could have done so in the perfect assurance that North held the Ace.

If any case, the hand provides an interesting example of the value of very easy inference and deduction.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1933.

Japan And The League.

THE LEAGUE of Nations recovered a great deal of lost prestige when the League Assembly on Friday adopted the Report of the Committee of Nineteen on the Sino-Japanese dispute. The Report constitutes a frank indictment of Japan's militarism, and, on the lines of the Lytton report, censures Japan for her aggression in Manchuria. That the League, after months of hesitancy and ineffective debate, has at last made a firm decision reveals a determination to maintain the sanctity of peace pacts and treaties. It is an encouraging sign that the League refuses to be intimidated by Tokyo's threat of withdrawal and leads to the hope that the League will yet prove an effective body. Although it is not made clear how the Report will enforce its adoption is a fact of considerable importance. The hostile verdict is of immense moral significance and will accomplish much to bring the Tokio war-lords to their senses. As Lord Lytton pointed out in his admirable survey of the Far East situation, Japan's Army and Navy are still organized on a feudal basis and her present policy is dictated by the militarist clique which is able, constitutionally, to ignore the opinions of civil leaders. Undoubtedly, the League decision will weaken the influence of the militarist party and may eventually lead to expression of a more moderate policy which would enable a settlement to be reached at Geneva. There seems little doubt that Japan will withdraw from the League and while the consequences may be harmful, to the Disarmament Conference and to the World Economic Conference in particular, the withdrawal may be only temporary, pending realisation in Tokyo of the gravity of the situation.

Reports of fighting in the North indicate that the determined resistance of the Chinese troops has delayed the advance of the Jehol invaders. Peipiao and Nanling have fallen but the Chinese are strongly entrenched at Chaoyang and Lingyuan where the defenders possess a firm advantage through the mountainous nature of the country. It is significant that foreign experts state that if the Chinese show determined resistance at Lingyuan they can hold the Japanese there for several weeks. A review of the situation in the fighting areas provides, however, the disturbing reflection that the Japanese, if thwarted in their Jehol campaign, may force the issue by attacking Peking. No doubt, fearing international complications, Tokyo has evinced anxiety to avoid penetrating beyond the Great Wall, but the Shanghai affair illustrates to what desperate measures the Japanese war-lords will resort to carry out their annexation schemes. A blockade of China ports would probably be an additional measure if Japan did decide to attack Peking. Apart from the provocation any such blockade would provide the United States, the position of Hong Kong would also involve Great Britain, and Japan might easily find that she had overstepped herself. Already Japan's defiance of world opinion has caused a hardening in the attitude of several Powers and the rulers of the Island Empire will need display considerable wariness if they are to avoid serious international entanglements. Soviet Russia is again growing uneasy and Moscow is resuming the issue of statements of a bellicose nature. In France there is talk of sanctions against Japan, while American policy remains firmly antagonistic to Japan's violations of treaties. It is not without significance that the U.S. Navy is kept concentrated in the Pacific. No nation, unless it be Japan, desires to embroil in war, but as the League decision reveals, the world will not tolerate an act of war by any nation. At Geneva, it is hoped that moral persuasion will prove sufficient pressure to convince Japan of the error of her ways and that it will be unnecessary to apply more dramatic pressure. That wish is echoed in every part of the world.

DEPRESSION HITS PROFESSORS

Growing Total Of Dismissals.

New Haven, Connecticut. Steadily increasing complaints involving threatened dismissals from educational positions, allegedly because of economic conditions, are reported by the committee on academic freedom and tenure of the American Association of University Professors.

The chairman told the association's annual convention at Yale University that 66 new cases arose this year. Last year, he reported, there were 63, 27 were reported in 1930 and only seventeen were investigated in 1929.—Reuter.

BOTTLE'S STRANGE INFLUENCE.

British Museum
Returns Gift.

London. Because of a series of tragedies which have occurred in the house, the British Museum have agreed to return to the Old Malt House, Bourne End, a bottle containing an ivory crucifix which was given to the owner of the house by monks in the early sixteenth century.

The bottle has been kept in the house ever since and has always been regarded as a talisman bringing luck and prosperity to the house. A few years ago, in view of its antiquity and interest, the bottle was sent to the British Museum and within a year four tragedies occurred with the family occupying the house.

Eventually the house was left empty and all attempts to let it failed. The British Museum were then approached and returned the bottle a little while ago. Within ten days the house was let.—Reuter.

COMMITTEE SET UP FOR "HOLY YEAR."

In addition to the usual pilgrimages to Rome, it is understood that a large pilgrimage will also go to Palestine to visit the spot where Christ was crucified.

On May 4, the festival for the finding of the Holy Cross, all the crosses over the churches of Rome are expected to be illuminated.—Reuter.

LONDON TOPICS

From Our Own Correspondent

January 27.

Mr. J. G. Latham.

Perhaps because he makes no bid for popularity, Mr. J. G. Latham, the Australian Attorney-General and Minister for External Affairs and for Industry, is held in highest respect and admiration by the rank and file of all parties in the Commonwealth. His new dignity of Privy Councillor, while it is a tribute to his fine character, will be cause of great satisfaction among his fellow-countrymen.

Mr. Latham was in London last spring in order to appear before the Privy Council when Mr. Lang's appeal against the decision of the Australian Courts regarding the power to abolish the New South Wales upper House was heard.

During that visit he made a deep impression on a score or so of the most eminent men of the day. At a dinner party he rose and spoke with such modesty and such force of conviction that none who heard him is likely to forget the occasion.

Lord Mayor's Problem.

To anyone knowing Sir Percy and Lady Greenaway in private life, or in their official capacity as Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of London, a story told at the Mansion House recently will not come as a surprise.

It is the firm belief of Sir Percy that a man must have exercise in order to keep fit, and the best form of exercise is competitive. A problem which arose early in the official year was how the Lord Mayor could keep fit by way of competitive exercise.

He could not very well challenge a City policeman, as this might be a little too athletic.

A Solution.

A solution was found—walking matches between the Mansion House and Victoria-embankment, the competitors being the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress.

Both have wins to their credit, but how many each was not divulged, nor was the handicap, if any, stated. That the story may be accepted is beyond doubt, because the Lord Mayor told it himself, at the City of London Police Athletic Club distribution of prizes by the Lady Mayoress.

Future of Mr. Walter Edge.

Mr. Walter Edge, the American Ambassador to France, arrived in London recently. His visit had no official significance. The Ambassador had merely brought his young son to be fitted out in London before he goes to school.

Mr. Edge, like Mr. Mellon, is among the American representatives abroad who will resign their posts when the Roosevelt Administration takes over in March. Some time ago he told me that he was eager to return to American politics. Now that the French Government has decided to suspend debt negotiations until after March 4, his official career in Paris is virtually at an end, and the visit paid to him by M. Boncour recently was the last incident, to all practical purposes, in Mr. Edge's role in the Franco-American debt dispute.

When he next intervenes in the controversy it will be from the benches of the Senate in Washington.

Sir Charles Oman's Bill.

Sir Charles Oman, Conservative M.P. for Oxford University, and one of our most eminent historians, was responsible recently for the most entertaining ten minutes which the House of Commons has had for years.

Scholarship, with which Sir Charles has been associated all his life, may be dry, and Sir Charles has the white locks, the slight stoop, and the benevolently peering air of those whose days are spent among books.

There was nothing dry, however, about the speech, in which he successfully asked permission to introduce a bill against motor vehicles which are too large and go too fast.

Nothing racier than the speech in which he lamented the fact that these "jangling juggernauts" have dispossessed Oxford citizens of their own streets, could be imagined. He had M.P.s rocking with laughter.

Thirty Years Ago.

Following the B.B.C.'s recent celebration of its tenth anniversary, it is interesting to recall the first wireless message transmitted across the Atlantic 30 years ago.

It was sent by Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada, to King Edward VII. from Cap Breton to the Marconi Station in Cornwall. King Edward, replying to Lord Minto, said: "I am much interested by the wireless message which you have sent me, and am delighted at the success of Signor Marconi's great invention, which brings Great Britain and Canada into still closer connection."

At the time, the speed attained was, roughly, fifteen words a minute. To-day, on the Marconi beam circuits, the operators often transmit at 400 words a minute.

Elgar's Friend.

The fact that Sir Edward Elgar is engaged upon the composition of another symphony is properly acclaimed in the world of music as an event of the first magnitude.

Sir Edward has been a long time coming into his own with the English public, who find it hard to believe in the phenomenal greatness of the native-born musician. But for his friend, A. J. Jaeger, he might have had to wait much longer for recognition. Jaeger was one of Novello's readers, and by his persistency he forced employers to give ear to his progress.

It is also said that he influenced the form of some part of at least Elgar's music. The "Enigma Variations," in particular—work which brought Elgar into notice—owes a good deal of its popular appeal to Jaeger's flair. Elgar was a constant visitor to the Jaeger household at Muswell Hill thirty years ago, and his music frequently floated over the garden fences to ears which little suspected the eminence of its source.

Westminster Hall.

Fifty years is a very short life for the Law Courts compared with the 667 years during which Westminster Hall was the centre of English justice.

No wonder "the Hall" became synonymous with the practice of the law and that a man who had achieved eminence in the law was "powerful at Westminster."

L. G. A Great Actor.

Mr. Lloyd George is always an effective debater. Like all great orators, too, he has a quality of the great actor in him which well.

Certainly in his speech recently he managed to work up a great deal of stage indignation about Mr. MacDonald's absence during the debate on unemployment being an "insult to the House."

His point was that if the Prime Minister was well enough to go to Loughborough and from there broadcast a speech on unemployment, he was also well enough to remain in the House.

It is a point that will not carry much weight with those who heard the broadcast speech in question. Before he began and during his speech the Prime Minister coughed repeatedly, and it was obvious from his voice that he was suffering from a very severe cold.

A MINATURE HOSPITAL.

A complete hospital in miniature is to be opened by the Prince of Wales for public inspection to collect for the King Edward's hospital fund. THE PAWN-BROKING KN.

Castle Inn, opposite Farringdon Street Station, London, is both a public house and a pawnbroker's shop. The miniature brass bulls hanging over a door in the public bar, and beneath them is a framed copy of the Pawnbroker's License granted under the Act of 1872. It all came about because King George IV., after a bad day with his bets at a cockfight, called with some friends at the Castle Inn, but no one in the party had sufficient money to pay for their drinks. King George handed his jewelled watch to the landlord, who protested that he was not a pawnbroker. The following morning a loyal courier came and paid for the drinks and, in exchange for the King's watch, handed the innkeeper a Royal scroll permitting the Castle Inn to be used as a pawnbroker's shop. — S. & G.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 85.

The Migratory Thrushes.

THE Mistle Thrush is in the family Phoenicurus (which includes also the Daurian Redstart) and is therefore not a true Thrush. The very common Black-faced Laughing-Thrush and the Hwamei are both babblers belonging to the family Timaliidae. Our only resident thrush is the common Violet Whistling thrush; but several migratory thrushes visit the local Territories during the winter months. When Major Hutson wrote of these in Vol. II of H.K.N. he listed three species as known to us, one other probable and nine other possibilities. The three certainties then known were the Grey-backed Thrush, the Eastern Blue Rock-Thrush and the Red-bellied Rock-Thrush, and the probable, the Chinese Blackbird. The Chinese Blackbird is now known definitely from several localities and a number of observations have been made on its habits and one of the possibilities has been identified with certainty, namely the Japanese Grey Thrush, N.N. 89.

In the Lam Teun Valley on February 18 a number of interesting ornithological observations were made. The Chinese Blackbird was seen in 2 or 3 different woods but never in large parties only one or two birds at a time. Another thrush was observed in one's or two's and in small parties; this species was very shy and it was only as a result of very hard work that it was identified with certainty as the Grey-backed Thrush, Turdus hortulorum. A very beautiful bird, clear light blue-grey on top, wings with a wash of olive; lower throat and breast clear pale grey, sides of lower breast, flanks and under wing coverts bright chestnut-orange, centre of breast and abdomen white. The brilliant chestnut of the under parts is most striking but the bird does not show them save when in flight.

This thrush keeps close to the ground, in dense cover, where it searches diligently amongst the dead leaves for insects and fallen berries. When alarmed it runs away and utters querulous cries. Only with great difficulty can it be induced to take to flight and then it flies either to the very top of the highest trees or alternatively away very close to the ground to the next patch of dense cover. We think that in addition to these three migratory thrushes there are other species now on a winter visit to these territories, we hope to discover and study them during the next few weeks.

The Barbet has begun to call and while in the Lam Teun Valley we heard its monotonous call sounding from two or three woods at the same time. La Touch interprets its call as "Cooloo-cooloo-se-yoo" which is quite near it if whistled in a monotone with the emphasis on the "ee". This is one of our most vividly coloured birds, largely bright grass-green with bright scarlet under tail coverts. At least one living specimen may be seen in the aviary at the Botanic Gardens.

A New Terrapin.

I have written more than once about two species of native freshwater tortoises or terrapins, namely Cuora trifasciata, one of the Asiatic Box Tortoises, called locally Kum Tsin Kwai, or gold coin tortoise, because the top of its head is yellow, and Chinemys reevesi which has 3 ridges on its shell and yellow longitudinal streaks and angular marks on the sides of the head and neck. Another species has now turned up. A terrapin was found by one of my collectors at Aberdeen which is quite definitely Ocadia sinensis. Malcolm Smith writes that it is "A common species in Southern China; found in ponds, canals, and sluggish streams." My specimen is 5 inches long, the shell is olive brown above and below yellow with a large orange-brown blotch on each shield. The digits are fully webbed, the claws are long. On the sides of the head, neck and limbs are numerous narrow longitudinal yellow lines. The top of the head is dark olive green.

THE SMALL-POX OUTBREAK.

Questions For The Sanitary Board.

Questions regarding the precautions taken against the small-pox outbreak will be asked by Dr. Li Shu-fan at the meeting of the Sanitary Board on Tuesday next. A minute from the President of the Board relative to the insertion in both the English and Chinese of notice warning the public against the dangers of small-pox will be read.

Dr. Li Shu-fan will ask:— "Will the Head of the Sanitary Department be good enough to obtain from the Government for the information of this Board, the answers to the following questions, in connection with the Medical Inspection of Schools:

(i) Whether it has been the practice that all registered schools in the Colony were periodically inspected and the pupils examined by Government Medical Officers?

(ii) If not, why not?

(iii) What was the number of English and Vernacular Schools inspected and uninspected and the number of pupils examined and unexamined during 1932?

(iv) What was the total number of English and Vernacular Schools registered during 1932 and the approximate total number of pupils in the registered schools?

B. In the event of the answer to (i) question A, being in the negative, what measures does the Government propose to adopt in the future with the view of completely checking up and safeguarding the health of school children in the Colony?

HONG KONG BANK MEETING.

Increased Profit Shown.

SILVER VALUE DEPENDS ON EXPORT TRADE.

"The one certain direction in which to look for the strength of the silver market is the revival of export trade from China and India" declared the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson, in addressing shareholders at the ordinary yearly meeting of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation held in the Bank's Offices, 1, Queen's Road Central, this morning. Many shareholders were present.

In his speech, the Chairman referred to the year 1932 as being even worse than the previous year from a trade point of view. But the figures put before the meeting, he stated, could be considered satisfactory, in the circumstances.

The Chairman, addressing the meeting said:— "After making full provision for losses and contingencies the net profits for the year amount to $16,893,720.58, an increase over the previous year of a little over $4 lakhs, or, expressed in sterling, an increase of about about £70,000.

"After deducting the interim dividend paid at 1/3.1.8, and Directors' remuneration, the amount available for distribution is $12,619,033.39 which it is proposed to deal with as follows:—

To pay a final dividend of 43 per cent (subject to deduction of Income Tax)	$ 7,680,000.00
Transfer to Bank Premises Account	1,500,000.00
Carry forward to New Account	3,439,033.39
	$12,619,033.39

"The year 1931 was a very bad one from every point of view, as mentioned by my predecessor in the Chair last year, but I think we can say that from a trade point of view 1932 was even worse. In these circumstances I feel that you will agree with me that the figures we are now putting before you can be considered satisfactory.

"I am glad to say that the market value of our investments once more shows a satisfactory margin over the value at which they stand in our books.

"With regard to the figures of the balance sheet, the biggest change from the previous year is the large increase of Cash and Bullion against increases in note issue and of other Banks' balances lying with us under the heading of Current Accounts, which is ample proof of the dullness of the times we live in.

Mr. Hancock's Speech. Seconding the report, Mr. H. R. B. Hancock said:—"The past year has been one of the most difficult in the history of the Bank and it is a remarkable tribute, I think, to our Chief Manager that he has been able to present us with such an excellent Balance Sheet as we have before us. We congratulate him most heartily on his achievement and whilst congratulating him, I should like to include the Managers and Sub-Managers of our Head Office and numerous Branches and Agencies and the staff in general.

"I am only sorry that our Directors have not been able to reward them with a bonus, but I trust they will not be forgotten when more prosperous times reappear," Mr. Hancock concluded.

Many Shareholders Attend. The Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson was supported by Messrs. A. H. Compton, T. E. Pearce, G. Miskin, T. H. R. Shaw, J. P. Warren (Directors), V. M. Grayburn (Chief Manager).

Shareholders present were the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, the Hon. Sir William Shenon, Messrs. W. Allen, J. M. Alves, Frank Austin, G. E. Brown, J. W. C. Bonnar, Chan Lim-pak, Chau Shu-ming, Chau Sang-choo, Chun Wing-kei, D. H. Cooper, N. V. A. Croucher, J. D. Danby, H. Dixon, H. B. L. Dowling, G. S. Fenton, John Fleming, Fong Lang, H. L. L. Forsyth, G. G. Franklin, Fung Kong-on, H. R. B. Hancock, H. S. Hills, H. Owen Hughes, F. W. Stapleton, C. Palmer Johnson, E. D. Kotowall, Paul Lauder, D. J. Lewis, Lo Chung-wan, K. S. Morrison, A. U.S. MOVIE COMPANIES FACE RUIN

Vigorous Cuts In 1933.

77 PER CENT DROP IN RECEIPTS SINCE 1931.

New York. America's leading motion picture corporations are beginning 1933 with a vigorous campaign to pare expenses which, they hope, will enable at least some of them to get back on a moderately profitable basis.

At present the losses of some of the major producing units are running into millions of dollars annually and financial interests which have become involved in the industry are pressing for economies that will affect not only the highest-priced stars, but the theatre leases that have seen the principal weight on the slumping shoulders of the movie makers.

While actual picture production costs have been a considerable item in the deficits, the essence of the problem is said to be in the ratio of the fixed charges of the theatre department to the total gross, or theatre admissions. Even in more prosperous times this ratio was watched closely and frequently was found to be dangerously high.

Although the moving picture concerns endeavored during 1932 to cut down theatre operating costs, it was found that gross income continued to decline faster than the reductions. Auditing authorities of the producing companies state that the tendency of the gross has been steadily downward since the second week of the year.

Since the first of December, however, declines in gross income have been considerably more than seasonal. Drastic efforts are to be made to halt this declining tendency. In addition to the cutting of theatre costs, the producers hope to win back the indifferent public with better stories, better direction and acting and improved photography.

The down-trend of the picture business is shown by the returns of one leading company's theatre which were also open in 1931 and 1932. For these theatres in 50 weeks ended December 10, last, total admissions were only 77 per cent. of 1931.

In the last month of 1932, gross incomes of the larger companies are said to have declined severely, in many cases reaching levels of 65 and 70 per cent. of a year ago.—Reuter.

SHOES MADE OF HUMAN HAIR.

New Industry For Russia.

Budapest. A factory for the production of shoes made out of human hairs is shortly to be built at Gorki, according to a report from Moscow.

Four hundredweight of hairs have already been collected for the factory. It is calculated that the 450 hair-dressing salons of Moscow should provide approximately 1,500 tons of hair yearly. A ton of hair mixed with wool should provide a thousand pairs of shoes, so that the unwanted hair of the citizens of Moscow should give a yearly yield of one and a half million pairs of shoes.—Reuter.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR GANGSTER.

American Legion Honours Comrade.

Chicago, Illinois. Members of the American Legion gave a military funeral to Ted Newberry, a gang leader shot to death recently in an underworld dispute.

A chaplain of an American Legion post intoned a brief sermon, the post's colours stood at the head of the bronze and silver plated coffin and legionnaires acted as pallbearers.

The dead gangster had served with the American Flying Corps overseas during the World War.

Thousands of curious "mourners" had previously filed into the undertakers' parlour where the body lay in state.

The funeral procession was half a mile long. Newberry had once been identified with the underworld enterprises of George (Bugs) Moran and later as a lieutenant of Scarface "Al" Capone. His bullet riddled body was found lying on the roadside in a neighbouring State a short time ago.—Reuter.

AMERICA'S ELECTION CAMPAIGN COST.

Cheapest In Recent Years.

Washington. Thanks to the slump, the recent American Election was one of the cheapest in recent years.

The Republican National Committee has reported to Congress that it had spent about $535,000 at par—from June 1, 1932, to the end of the campaign year.

This compared with $343,000 reported by the victorious Democrats. In the last election of 1928 the Republicans spent $1,250,000 for the campaign which they won.

Among the subscribers to the Republican cause in the recent election was Henry Ford, who is recorded as having paid a bill of $5,000 for time on the air sold to Republican speakers by commercial broadcasting companies.—Reuter.

HAWK COLLIDES WITH PLANE

Oklahoma City. A hawk "boarded" a northbound air transport plane while it was flying 130 miles an hour between Amarillo, Texas, and Oklahoma City. The pilot was showered with glass as the big bird crashed through the cockpit windshield. A jagged fragment sheared the visor from his cap, but he was uninjured.—Reuter.

The Lesson Learned From Judas

No Safeguard Against Treachery

FIGURES IN THE DRAMA OF CALVARY

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

Once again in the cycle of the year, we are drawing near to the anniversary of that week which saw the closing scenes of the greatest drama ever played on the stage of the world's history.

During the Sundays which intervene between now and Easter, I propose to discuss very briefly the parts played by the main characters in the plot which reached its climax on the Cross of Calvary.

We begin to-day with Judas Iscariot.

We are inclined to think of him as some monster incarnate, or a one outside the pale of ordinary humanity. As a matter of fact he grew up, as we may infer from his after history, an active, promising, shrewd young man.

Then one day across his path came the Rabbi of Galilee. Crowds were following Him and Judas decided to join them, and share in the glories of the coming Kingdom. He was admitted into the inner circle, and soon becomes their treasurer. Probably he had some financial efficiency. He was what the world would call prudent, judicious, and economical.

At first everything went well. The enthusiasm of the crowds increased. They wanted to make Christ King. He declined, and the tide began to turn against Him. Judas watched the change. He had joined what he thought a successful political movement, by which he could be raised in power and station. He began to feel that he had been misled and deceived. He might as well get something out of the wreck. He began to use the common purse as his own property. We are told plainly he was a thief. Deterioration of character set in rapidly.

Time and time again his Master, by words and acts, tried to win him back. Even at the last, when all seemed hopeless, the Lord stooped to wash his feet. But he was hopelessly committed to the enemy, and all for the sake of "paltry thirty pieces of silver."

There came the awful scene in the moonlit Garden. Then he awoke, and now began the dread lash of conscience, so long lulled to sleep. As the storm of despair swept over him, he felt he must get rid of those pieces of silver, which like thirty serpents coiled themselves around his soul, with the cold grip of death.

With the hell hounds of remorse hard upon his heels, he ran to the priests, who laughed at the poor fool who had served their purpose. Casting the money at their feet, he rushed out again into the darkness. It was the end. The cold grey light of dawn found his body hanging from a tree in the Valley Hlanom.

So he passed on to his reward. It may be that he has found more mercy at the Bar of Eternal Justice than he has had at the tribunal of public opinion, but his name has become a by-word of all that is utterly shameful.

We think of him as a monster of iniquity who committed a deed which can never be repeated. Are we quite so sure?

Judas The Financier. There was nothing to distinguish him from the rest of the disciples until the last deadly act of betrayal was accomplished. Before that, he was to all appearances the same as the others. In fact, from his position as treasurer of the little band, we might assume that he was a little superior to his associates.

He had a reputation as a financier, which, no doubt was as valuable in the first century as it is to-day. He was not easily moved to generous feeling by any act of supreme devotion. When Mary of Bethany anointed the feet of the Master, Judas exclaimed against such waste. He was indignant at such seemingly useless extravagance.

The annual ball of bachelor members of the Craigcower Cricket Club was held in the Club's hall last night, and was largely attended. The bachelors were at home to married members and their ladies. An enjoyable dance was also held at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night.

The truth of the matter is that if we had met Judas before the betrayal, while he still possessed the confidence of his associates we might have been inclined to have placed him a little higher than some of his companions. He might have seemed less boorish, more business-like, more a man of the world than the Galilean fishermen.

If we had to make a choice from that band for some important mission of trust in which ability, prudence and wisdom were required, we might easily have chosen him for the job.

Anyway, there must have been some germ of good in him, otherwise he would not have followed this unknown Teacher. True, there was mixed up in this attachment some idea of self-advancement. But didn't the 11 others also expect this? Didn't they frequently dispute who should be the greatest in the Kingdom? In what way was Judas more ambitious than they?

Monster of Iniquity.

We are too much inclined to judge his character, merely at the end of his career. So we think of him as a monster of iniquity. In fact we are apt to consider all the Apostles as very different from ourselves, and when they deny their Lord, or betray Him, we say to ourselves, Had we been in their place we would never have done a thing like that, in the hour of His need.

But crimes are usually only committed when deterioration of character has set in, and that is so gradual, and often so unobtrusive, or if observed, we excuse or justify our word or conduct.

If Judas had been told, when he first joined, that one day he would betray his leader, he would have laughed at the idea.

There is nothing impossible in this world, and the conduct and career of Judas are repeated by many, and by all who have betrayed, plough have looked back—who having put their hand to the plough have looked back—who dazed by worldly advantages, have given up the service of Christ, because the world so persistently shouts that Christianity is a failure—who as followers of the Crucified, would be disciples without the Cross.

Knowing what we do of life, and looking into our own experience dare we say that the conduct of Judas is so unparalleled?

His history lives to warn us that discipleship is no safeguard against betrayal—that intimate communion does not debar disloyalty,—that even tender affection is not proof against blackest treachery.

From the upper room in Jerusalem, that aching voice rings out again across the centuries, "Verily I say unto you, one of you shall betray Me!"

Let us ask ourselves in all sincerity, "Lord is it I?"

CRICKET CLUB DANCES.

The annual ball of bachelor members of the Craigcower Cricket Club was held in the Club's hall last night, and was largely attended. The bachelors were at home to married members and their ladies. An enjoyable dance was also held at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night.

Brutality In Car Driving Why Some Drivers Make The Rivets Start

APPLICATION OF BRAKES

IN common with the majority of other motorists who have held a driving licence since pre-war days, Mr. J. Harrison, A. M. I. Mech. E. A. M. I. A. E., in an interesting article contributed to The Autocar says:—I commenced my road experience on a bicycle, and graduated, by way of a score of motor cycles, most of them of doubtful antecedents, to the four-wheeler stage.

In those far-off times one needed to be something of an engineer to get along at all on a motor cycle, and if one was determined to survive, one rapidly acquired an accurate sense of judgment, and, by frequent association with the internal parts of the machine, a sympathy towards things mechanical. One learned that repeated oversteering of the handle led to mysterious breakdowns the cause of which has since been identified by scientists as fatigue. We were a select coterie that gathered in the motor cycling clubs in those days and meted out the treatment to those who maltreated machinery that other decent people give to those who ill-treat dogs and children.

Since those days the combined endeavours of Mr. Ford, Sir Herbert Austin, and Sir William Morris have made motorists of everybody and consequently there has come into existence a large class of drivers who, from sheer thoughtlessness or lack of feeling for machinery, commit unspeakable atrocities on cars.

Automobile Assassins.

Chief among the automobile assassins is the hurrying gentleman whose main driving action consists of stepping hard alternately on the brake pedal and accelerator. It is useless to inform him that delicacy of touch is as essential to get the best out of a car as it is out of a musical instrument. One does not obtain the most rapid acceleration by jabbing the accelerator down by jabbing the "feeling" it down, hard, but by "feeling" it down, gradually, to meet the engine's demands. As, too, all modern cars are designed to be operated by lady drivers, pedal pressures are invariably light, and the sweetest and most effective braking is attained by a carefully modulated pressure on the pedal.

As long as twenty-one years ago Ettore Bugatti laid it down as a first principle of motoring that a good driver needs no brakes. To-day, when all main roads are straight and wide, and when the motoring associations combine with other authorities in placing warning signs before every corner or cross-roads that harbours the slightest danger, there is less need than ever for harsh and brutal application of the brakes. So why not acquire a sense of judgment and approach all danger spots at such a reasonable pace that only the gentlest application of the brakes is necessary? Why drive like a brute, stamping alternately on the accelerator and brake pedal?

Waste of Petrol.
The waste of petrol and oil that such driving methods involve is obvious. It is also easy to see why this class of driver is the friend of all tyre and brake-lining manufacturers. More difficult to visualise is the damage that such brutality does to the whole of the car.

It is now generally understood by engineers that a fairly steady unidirectional load on a part is easily sustained, but when the load varies considerably and rapidly in magnitude and direction metal particles are torn asunder and fatigue sets in then alarming things happen.

The brutish driver loads every part up to the maximum as soon as his foot is planted firmly on the accelerator, and then, when it is kicked on to the brake pedal, the load on every part is suddenly ruthlessly reversed. The occupants of the car are thrown forward, and the body is thrown forward over the chassis to the detriment of the body holding-down bolts and the frame rivets. The rubber of his tyre trends squeals unheeded in protest, before particles of it rip off.

Harmful Application.
If all the four wheels gripped with even force when the brakes were powerfully applied the harm that this kind of driving does would not be so pronounced as it is, but, in practice, it is usually one wheel that gets most of the kick, for one brake invariably takes effect in advance of its fellows. This cannot be avoided by the designer of the car, who cannot guard against the varying coefficient of friction between the tyres and the road, caused by uneven wear or surface.

It often happens that the wheels on one side of the car are on a dry strip of road while the other pair runs on the wet. When the brakes are applied the wheels on the dry surface grip and tend to pull the frame and axles out of square.

CRUELTY!

Recently a gentleman in Indianapolis bought a new car. He had, however, a constitutional objection to letting his wife sit in the front seat. So, whenever they went for a ride together he made her sit at the back. His wife resented this strongly. She sued for divorce on the grounds of cruelty. She got her decree.

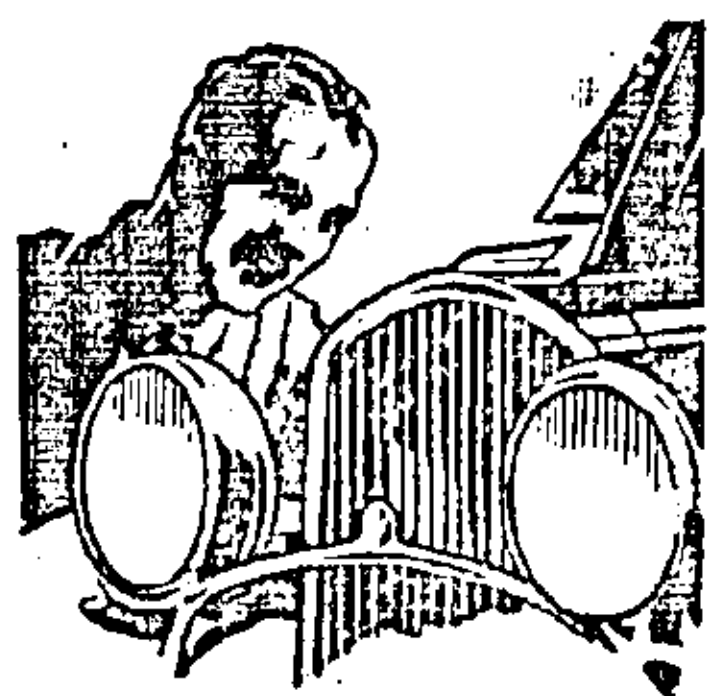

TEN THOUSAND CARS.

In these days of trade depression it is heartening to learn that at least one industry is working at full pressure, as indicated by the latest report from the Austin factory at Longbridge, Birmingham.

It is revealed that this factory's delivery figures for the past two months amount to more than 10,000 cars or over 190,000 developed horse-power.

Of these 10,000 cars some 1,800 have been dispatched overseas, South Africa and New Zealand having taken the largest numbers.

When the brakes are released and the accelerator is jammed down it is the gripping pair of wheels that move forward first, and then they rack the chassis and axles in the opposite direction. A year of this and even the most robust parts protest against the treatment.

Car Ventilation Improvement

Adjustable Suction Louvre Idea.

NO CLOUDING.

Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, which will be introduced this year, and all General Motor closed cars will feature this year, is a simplified application of the adjustable suction louvre idea, whereby the outside air supply may be effectively controlled at the will of the driver or by the passenger sitting next each window. The "louvre" is in effect an adjustable windshield wing, controlled by an irreversible worm geared regulator, which holds it in any set position. This swinging part of the window forms the front section. The rear section, in front doors, slides up and down in the regular way, and when raised forms a tight closure, excluding drafts and permitting locking.

In the conventional type of car, air enters through the left front window to form a draft which literally wraps itself around the necks of the passengers and finally swirls out from behind the driver. Opening more than one window increases both air supply and discomfort, if the outside air be cold. On the other hand, the principle of the ventilating louvre is illustrated when the forward section of only one window is swung out. Air enters at the front, but is drawn out at the back of this adjustable wing, so that a vortex is formed near that one window, whose sectional area is controlled by the angle to which the wing is opened. With small openings, this effect is localized in one or more parts of the car.

No Clouding.

With the driver's window fully opened, a controllable supply of air is drawn in and across the windshield, which is thus prevented from clouding in cold weather, but the orderly exit of air behind the wing avoids objectionable counter currents. A low-pressure area normally extending along the car on all sides permits controlled exit ventilation from any seat position.

When the outside air is warm, on the other hand, the wings may be swung outward to form intake scoops, raising the pressure within the body as much as may be desired. Thus greatly increased interior air circulation is possible, when desired, but still subject to complete and instantaneous control.

No-draft ventilation, as described, is applied to the front doors of all new Fisher closed bodies, which also have the advantage of a greater windshield area, due to the removal of the mechanism required by the ventilating arrangement which the new system supplants. The rear quarter windows of all sedan models also have the vertically split window with adjustable pivoted forward section, and are proportionately larger than heretofore.

GERMAN CARS IN HOLLAND

Several makers of German cars are well represented in Holland, but trading barriers have recently been erected between the two countries, which the Dutch view with disfavour, and hence the popularity of the German products has waned considerably. A number of second-hand German cars which were hawked round at remarkably low prices, and found ready purchasers, proved to have been stolen, and in due course the legal owners claimed restitution at the expense of the Dutch buyers, so that is another reason why the German car is viewed with suspicion.—"The Autocar."

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"STYLE," as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more.

Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring"—a Packard characteristic for a third of a century.

So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved—like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower—it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

Who Killed So He Could Love?

A man—fearless adventurer . . . a girl—beautiful, alluring...cast away on Zaroff's mysterious island! Their ship lured to destruction by his false beacon lights!

Now, they were fugitives from his dogs and arrows, for Zaroff hunted men like beasts for the sporting thrill!...gave the man a knife...sent him into the jungle...matched wits with wits, cunning with cunning, through a night of screaming terror ...For Zaroff had said, "What is woman, even such a woman as this, until the blood has been quickened by the kill!"

MICHIGAN BANK TROUBLES.

More than 500 Michigan banks are affected by the moratorium, precipitated by a run on the Union Guardian Trust Company of which Mr. Henry Ford and his son are directors. The attitude taken by Mr. Ford, who refused to allow the subordination of $7,000,000 held by the bank to his account, is stated to have seriously hindered the negotiations for a settlement.

Report of the Committee of Nineteen, the Canadian Government desired to express the appreciation of the work of the Committee, whose recommendations in the Report should provide a solid basis for a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute.

After the Venezuelan and Lithuanian delegates spoke briefly, M. Hymans announced the decision to take a vote on the Report, reading relevant articles and explaining that unanimity would mean all members of the Councils without the parties to the dispute, plus a majority of other members. The vote then proceeded by roll call. Forty-two delegates voted "yes", Japan "no" and Siam abstained from voting. Eleven out of the fifty-seven States composing the Assembly were not represented.

RIVER STEAMER
AGROUND.

Sai On Ashore At Elliott Island.

The river steamer Sai On, well-known on the Hong Kong-Canton run, is ashore at Elliott Island, three-quarters of a mile from Blake Point outside Hong Kong. First intimation of the accident was received at the Water Police Station in a wireless message from the river steamer Lung Shan. No serious damage was done, it is understood, and the passengers were taken off the grounded ship by the s.s. Fat Shan. The Sai On went aground in the early hours of yesterday morning.

RUTHLESS MEASURES IN GERMANY.

The marches which Berlin now stood.
This declaration follows on Chancellor Hitler's statement, that if any Party sought to oppose him, he would defend the unity of Germany. Replying to the threats of the Bavarian Government representatives to secede from the Reich, the Chancellor forecasted that such an attempt would mean the fall of Bavaria.

C.B.A. BEAT

Surprise Caer Clark
Cup Win.

E. S. WOOLLEY SCORES
DECIDER.

The Central British Association Ladies gained their first victory in the Caer Clark Cup Competition when they sensationally defeated the St. Andrew's Club Ladies, holders of the Southern Runners-up Cup, by 2 goals to 1, on the Marina ground yesterday afternoon.

The victory, which surprised critics, was creditable as it was the first match the C.B.A. ladies played on a sand ground in the competition. In their first meeting (the C.B.A.'s initial appearance) the Saints won by 12 goals to 2.
The C.B.A. held the lead at the interval by the only goal scored by M. Smith. On the resumption of play, M. Churn equalised for the Saints. Good forward movements led to E. S. Woolley netting the winning goal for the C.B.A.
The Saints pressed hard, but try as they did, they failed to score. E. M. Lee was particularly off form with her shots when in the dec.

C.B.A. — Mrs. Dand, Mrs. Hudson, A. E. E. Steele, E. Beavis, H. Ambrose, G. MacNider, M. Whitley, M. Smith, E. Carroll and E. S. Woolley.

St. Andrew's — J. Bryson, G. A. White, E. Landels, L. E. Woolley, M. D. White, M. E. W. Bryson, M. Chan, E. M. Lee, M. Woolley, M. Churn and P. Gittins.

Y.M.C.A. DRAW.
In a scrappy friendly match, played at King's Park yesterday afternoon, the Y.M.C.A. drew with H.M.S. Whitehead, each side netting twice, L. W. Macey and C. Balman scored for the "Y".
